Definition

In Illinois, robbery is defined as the taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force, threat of force, violence, and/or putting the victim in fear [720 ILCS 5/18]. Aggravated robbery occurs when the perpetrator either falsely indicates that they have a dangerous weapon while committing the crime, or when it cannot be determined whether the perpetrator had a weapon at the time of the incident. Armed robbery occurs if, during the commission of the robbery, the perpetrator has a dangerous weapon on or about his person. Vehicular hijacking involves the taking of a motor vehicle from another through the use or threat of force.

Law enforcement agencies are to report to the Illinois Uniform Crime Reporting (I-UCR) program occurrences of robbery, armed robbery, vehicular hijacking, aggravated vehicular hijacking, and aggravated robbery.

Robbery Rates per 100,000 by State, 2015

Illinois ranked 11th across the country in 2015, with a robbery rate of 115.9 per 100,000 population.

Prevalence by County

In 2015, 14,706 robberies were reported by law enforcement agencies to the I-UCR program. Of Illinois' 102 counties, 62 reported at least one robbery, while 38 reported zero robberies. Calhoun and Pope counties did not report their crime statistics to the I-UCR program.

Without calculating the robbery rates per county, the raw numbers of occurrences provides only partial information. The chart below depicts the number of robberies and rate of robberies from the same counties to illustrate this difference (the counties with the highest five numbers and highest five rates were chosen; Cook, Peoria, Sangamon, Vermilion, and Winnebago were in the top five for both numbers and rates). As can be seen, the number of robbery occurrences in Cook County is much greater than in any other county. However, when population size is taken into account, the considerably fewer robberies in Winnebago County produce a very similar rate to Cook County. The numbers of robberies in Peoria and St. Clair are almost identical, although the smaller population size of Peoria County produces a higher robbery rate.

Prevalence by Municipality

Robberies tend to be concentrated in urban centers within a county. The population size of cities and towns will affect the calculated rate of occurrence. For example, in Cook County, Chicago did not rank first in robbery rates, even though more robberies occurred there than in any other town. The two municipalities in Cook County with higher robbery rates than Chicago in 2015 were Deerfield (within Cook County) and Harvey.

Outcome information on arrest incidents that resulted in a court case also is entered into CHRI by county circuit court clerks. Since robbery cases can take time to resolve, court disposition information for 2012, 2013, and 2014 were examined to provide a more complete picture of robbery case outcomes.

Between 2012 and 2014, researchers were able to find records for 9,588 court cases for robbery that were adjudicated in Illinois criminal courts. Of those, at least half resulted in a guilty verdict.

Robbery is a Class 2 felony, with a penalty of three to seven years in prison. Aggravated robbery is a Class 1 felony with a penalty of four to 15 years in prison. Under certain circumstances, the sentence for a Class 1 felony can be extended to 15 to 30 years in prison. Armed robbery is a Class X felony with a penalty of a mandatory prison sentence of six to 30 years in prison. Vehicular hijacking is a Class 1 felony, with a penalty of four to 15 years in prison.

Illinois Department of Corrections (IDOC) data showed an average of almost 870 people per year in 2012, 2013, and 2014 were admitted to IDOC for a robbery conviction, or 8.2 percent of all persons admitted during that time. The average sentence length was 7.77 years, and the median sentence length was 6 years. At the end of June, 2015, 4,272 individuals were serving a prison sentence for robbery.

Conclusion

Conclusion

In 2015, the City of Chicago experienced 86 percent of all robberies in Cook County and 66 percent of all robberies in Illinois. However, robbery rates indicate Winnebago and Peoria counties also are experiencing more violence associated with robbery than other counties.

Data show black males averaging around 20 years of age are most often arrested for robbery. Data also indicates that because the majority of robbery offenders have previous criminal histories, earlier intervention is needed. Offender risk and needs assessments with resources to address the identified risks and needs could help reduce recidivism among this population and improve public safety.

¹⁴ 730 ILCS 5/3-6-3, known as the "Truth-In-Sentencing" Law, establishes sentencing rules in Illinois. It was originally enacted in 1998 and has been updated/added to several times since then.

It says those persons convicted of armed robbery and aggravated vehicular hijacking are only eligible for 4.5 days of good time credit per month served (essentially, they must serve 85% of their sentence), while those convicted of robbery, aggravated robbery, and vehicular hijacking, are eligible for day-for-day good time credit (must serve 50% of their sentence).
